

CODE JOURNEY

Intro

<CodeCrew/>

Exercising the job we love is the everybody's dream. But is not so easy to get there. Since a long time, mine is to be a software developer, because it combines all my aspirations: challenges, creativity and especially friendship. I left Russia after 8 years of residence for the USA where I am since 5 months. From a friend to my sister, I heard about a community that often meets in different places to talk about programming: CODE CONNECTIVE. I went there one day at their meeting, and this is where I met someone very nice, who had some coding experience, and to whom I asked a lot of questions about coding, how to learn better, what are the perspectives... He spoke about the school where he learned to code, and all the benefits it will bring me.

Then he directed me to the executive director of that school that gives everyone the chance, without distinction of any kind, to learn to code (you guessed) : CODE CREW SCHOOL. After a very nice conversation, I followed the procedure to enter the school: the appointment first and after the interview. Speaking of the interview, it was a great moment of stress because I could not express myself correctly in English, I was very sad at the end because I told myself that I had completely missed my luck. (ooo sorry! I know I do not have to draw a quick conclusion but (+_+).....ok stop let's continue)....And one day I receive an email from code crew: "Congratulations, you have been selected for the spring class".
WHAAAAAAAAAT!!!!!!

I was so, but so happy (^_^). I informed everybody around me (family, friends, even the uber's driver) and they was so proud of me. it was an unforgettable moment for me. I don have coding experience but I promised to get to the end, and I'm sure I'll get there. We will see what the first week reserves for us, but I am very happy to join the school.
